presented as Woman of the Year at the annual banquet Friday evening. John Watts, center, made the presentation and cited many accomplishments of each leading to the honor.

NEWS AND VIEWS...

And What Have You

By BOB CRAIG

While I did not have anything to do with the selection or the presentation of the Citizens of the Year awards this year, I could not have come up with any better selections than the two chosen. I was very pleased that they were selected for this honor during my term as BCD president.

As John Watts said in making the presentation to Mrs. L. C. (Peggy) Bonds, she was deserving of the honor even before she launched her campaign to secure a Day Care Center for Hamlin. Her enthusiasm alone is enough to merit her selection for this award.

Peggy was the one key individual behind the whole day care center project. A lot of people worked on it and they all deserve a lot of credit but they would have all quit long before the job was finished if it had not been for Peggy's untiring efforts. She just would not let any of us say no.

But probably the greatest thing about the whole presentation was the fact that John was able to keep this secret from her. This was the person who in the past has handled all of the details on these presentations and it was not easy to exclude her this year. John told her a member of her family had been nominated and he thought it would be better if he handled the whole matter.

And of course a member of her family was nominated, her son David. Here again I was quite happy with the committee's choice. As one who has been closely associated with the Hamlin Schools' athletic program for the past 14 years, both as a member of the press and a fan, I have never known a coach who has worked any harder at his job than David.

Nor have I ever known anyone who has put more determination, enthusiasm, or desire into the program as David and his staff have during the past two and a half years. His record is one that any coach could be proud of but at the same time it is one that is well earned.

I know that L. C. and the rest of the family are quite proud of these two. And if the truth were known, I

DURING BCD BANQUET—

Mother-Son Combination Named Top Citizens Here

A mother-son combination came up with the top honors at the Hamlin Board of Community Development Annual Banquet held here Friday as Mrs. L. C. Bonds and her son, David, were named Woman and Man of the Year.

The presentation was made by John Watts, chairman of the selection committee composed of representatives of all of the service clubs and organizations in Hamlin.

Mrs. Bonds, while active in many of the church and civic affairs of Hamlin and the executive secretary of the BCD, was cited for her award for being the driving force in securing a Child Day Care Center for Hamlin.

David was cited for, "having done much to strengthen and reinforce our pride in our community" through the accomplishments of his athletic teams at Hamlin High School.

Peggy Jane is the wife of L. C. Bonds and they have four sons and eight grandchildren. She is active in the Methodist Church where she is a member of the Administrative Board and teaches the Mary Martha Sunday School class. She is a member of Eastern Star and is presently serving as secretary of the local chapter. Peggy is also active in the Xi Gamma Pi chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority and has held many of the offices within the chapter.

Watts in making the presentation pointed out the many duties Peggy performs for the BCD as executive secretary and then said, "For this work alone, she deserves to receive this award tonight."

"But in the summer of 1972 she saw the need, and it is a very real need, for a Child Day Care Center here in Hamlin. Unlike most people who would just say, 'yes, we need a Day Care Center,' and do nothing more, she set to work to see that Hamlin would have a Day Care Center."

"On her own time she investigated how to go about setting up such a center, what type of facility would be necessary, what type of equipment would be put into it. And then she suggested, asked, begged, prodded, cried, anything that was necessary to get the project actually on the road."

"And in October of 1973 the first Carnival was held to raise money for the funding of the Center. With that initial $900.00 raised, she set to work as though we had all the money necessary to create the Center. Little did she know that her work was only beginning."

"She located the facility, made arrangements for its

BE ACTIVE IN COMMUNITY—

Dr. Kyker Urges Citizens Not to Become Cripples

Dr. Rex Paxton Kyker urged his audience not to become cripples, but to become active in the affairs of their community. Dr. Kyker, chairman of the Department of Communication at Abilene Christian College, spoke to the Annual Banquet of the Hamlin Board of Community Development here Friday evening.

One of the main highlights of the annual community affair, was the presentation of the Citizens of the Year award to Mrs. L. C. Bonds and her son David. Mrs. Bonds was cited for her efforts in getting the Hamlin Day Care Center in operation here. David was selected for his accomplishments with the Hamlin Athletic program during his nearly three years as Athletic Director. The presentation was made by John Watts, chairman of the selection committee.

(See other story in this edition on Citizens of the Year Awards.)

The new officers and directors were presented by retiring president, Bob Craig. He also recognized the outgoing officers and the directors whose three-year terms had expired.

New officers presented were Pat Willoughby, president; Mrs. Robert Fowler, first vice president; Joe Cowan, second vice president; Mrs. O. H. Weaver Jr., treasurer; and Mrs. L. C.

Bonds, executive secretary. Willoughby, in accepting the leadership role of the BCD for the coming year, asked for the help and support of those attending the banquet during the coming year and said, "with it there is nothing that cannot be done."

The Hamlin High School Stage Band, under the direction of Tim Jones, opened the banquet with a selection of several numbers. The band is scheduled to tour Europe this summer.

Craig, as retiring president, gave a report on the organization's activities during the past year and cited three major accomplishments for the community. They were the opening of the Hamlin Child Day Care Center, the forming of an Industrial Foundation, and the training program that has been launched for an Industrial Team.

The Center, which opened last June with six children now has 34 enrolled and has a waiting list. The Center has seven employees and a payroll of about $2,750 per month. "This Day Care Center is something that the whole community can take great pride in because it is a community project," Craig said.

Dr. Kyker, who was introduced by Lynn Mink, gave examples of people down through the ages who have overcome serious handicaps to become great leaders. He said that there is so much available for us to do and in his closing comment said, "I will not be a cripple. God wants me to do something wonderful with my life — I will not disappoint Him."

Mink, music-education director of the First Baptist Church, served as master of ceremonies and introduced the out of town guests. The Rev. Jim Smith, pastor of the First United Methodist Church gave the invocation and David E. Giddings, minister of the Church of Christ, gave the benediction.

Decorations for the banquet were provided by local clubs and organizations with each group using the theme of their organization to decorate a table. Providing the decorations were the Woman's Literary Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, Xi Gamma Pi, Beta Theta, Hamlin Garden Club, Young Homemakers, Woman's Forum, Eastern Star, Future Homemakers, Future Farmers, Lions Club and Rotary Club.

WHEN YOUR RATES GO UP WE'RE THE FIRST TO KNOW

Because our rates go up first. When the people who generate electricity for the rural electric cooperative pay more for their generating fuels, when they install costly anti-pollution devices, when they do anything that affects the price of power, the costs are passed along to the cooperative and its member-owners. In a time of instability in the oil and gas market, such increases seem all too frequent. But the rural electric cooperative, through good times and bad, has provided power at its lowest possible price. It's a promise we make for the future as well.

suspect that L. C. should get at least a small portion of the plaques because he does a lot of the leg work for both of them.

As one who only had one semester of economics in college and did not get much out of it, I just do not quite understand all that is being proposed by both the President and the Congress to re-direct our economy. Unfortunately, since we seem to get conflicting opinions from the nation's leading economists, I wonder if anyone knows what to do.

I do not suppose there will be much opposition to the idea of a tax cut since not many of us ever oppose such a move. But I still wonder how this is going to help very much. I do not know many people who will take their $200 or $300 and go out and buy a $6,000 car.

But the part that the average person seems to not be able to understand at all is the President's idea of a tax on oil. Now in the first place I do not think that any one has really sold the American people that we have an oil problem. People hear all kinds of talk about storage tanks being full and they see the price of gasoline either holding its own or even dropping a cent or two and they just do not believe we have a problem that is all that serious.

The public just does not understand the problem of balance of payments and other problems created by our importing so much oil. And they are not going to get with this matter of cutting back on the consumption of oil and gas until someone explains it better than it has been explained up to now.

From all I can read, it would appear that a tax on oil will just fuel the fires of inflation and offset any tax reduction being proposed. It would seem that in the end we will all be worse off than we were when this started. The cost of fertilizer will go up, as will the cost of trucking and other transportation, which in turn will continue to drive up the price of food.

It has been projected that the proposed $3.00 a barrel tax on oil would increase the price of gasoline about 10c a gallon. Now this is supposed to cause us to use less but over the past two years gasoline has gone up nearly 20c and I do not believe consumption has gone down very much. Most of us will continue to buy gas and find someplace else to make up the difference.

People's habits are hard to change and in many cases it takes a long time to change them to any extent. While many of us might like to own a car that got better gas mileage we still owe on the one we have. And most people who have driven big cars for any length of time are not going to buy a smaller car until they are forced to. This is proven by the fact that it is the smaller cars that Chrysler and Ford are currently discounting.

This tax idea might work, but I doubt it. I suspect that we will not solve our oil import problems until we either ration gasoline or just put a limit on the imports and let the resulting shortages change our habits.

acquisition and started gathering up the equipment that is required by the State to obtain a license to care for 35 children. Before she was through, there were few people in town who could say that they had not been asked by her for a donation to the Day Care Center.

"When things were not moving fast enough for her she would hire work done out of her own pocket, not expecting to be reimbursed for those expenses. After hours of hard work, of sleepless nights, of great frustrations and great joys, on June 17, 1974, her dream came true when the Hamlin Child Day Care Center opened its doors for the first time.

"On that day back in June, we had as many women working as we had children being cared for, but in the seven short months since that date, our enrollment has risen to 34.

"And through her able leadership on the Board of Trustees, the Center is fast approaching the status of a financially stable, non-profit organization that will render a most valuable service to this community for years to come."

In making the Man of the Year presentation, Watts said, "One of the basic needs in building a progressive, forward-moving community is a strong sense of community pride and unity. Unless the total community is involved in civic betterment, no progress can be achieved. But total community involvement can only come about if everyone first has a sense of pride in our city and feels that by working together we can make Hamlin a better place in which to live. Our Man of the Year for 1974 has done much to strengthen and reinforce our pride in our community."

After citing the many championships won by Hamlin since David became Head Coach and Athletic Director in 1972, Watts said, "His teams win not because winning is demanded of them at any cost, but rather they win because he has taught each individual player to be confident in himself and his abilities, to take pride in teamwork and in doing a job well.

"And what does the community derive from a successful, well-administered high school athletic program? It provides young citizens who have developed character traits that will serve them well throughout their lives, such as self-confidence and satisfaction in a job well done. It helps to bridge the so-called Generation Gap by providing a common meeting place for our students and our adults of all ages.

"And it goes a long way toward building that necessary ingredient of community pride."

A native of Hamlin, David is married to the former Gena Cox and they have two children, Doug and Joe. He is a graduate of McMurry College where he was named to the All-American Track Team and was named a Little All-American in football. He played professional football for the Kansas City Chiefs before coaching at Ballinger, McCamey and at Alice.

In his first head coaching job here at Hamlin his football teams have won two District Championships and shared a third and won one Bi-District title. The basketball team won District and Bi-District in 1973 and District in 1974. The track team has won the State Championship the past two years and the golf team won district last year.

CITIZENS OF THE YEAR—David Bonds, left head football coach and athletic director of Hamlin High School, was presented as Man of the Year and his mother, Mrs. L. C. Bonds, right, executive director of Hamlin Board of Community Development, was presented as Woman of the Year at the annual banquet Friday evening. John Watts, center, made the presentation and cited many accomplishments of each leading to the honor.

NEWS AND VIEWS...

And What Have You

By BOB CRAIG

While I did not have anything to do with the selection or the presentation of the Citizens of the Year awards this year, I could not have come up with any better selections than the two chosen. I was very pleased that they were selected for this honor during my term as BCD president.

As John Watts said in making the presentation to Mrs. L. C. (Peggy) Bonds, she was deserving of the honor even before she launched her campaign to secure a Day Care Center for Hamlin. Her enthusiasm alone is enough to merit her selection for this award.

Peggy was the one key individual behind the whole day care center project. A lot of people worked on it and they all deserve a lot of credit but they would have all quit long before the job was finished if it had not been for Peggy's untiring efforts. She just would not let any of us say no.

But probably the greatest thing about the whole presentation was the fact that John was able to keep this secret from her. This was the person who in the past has handled all of the details on these presentations and it was not easy to exclude her this year. John told her a member of her family had been nominated and he thought it would be better if he handled the whole matter.

And of course a member of her family was nominated, her son David. Here again I was quite happy with the committee's choice. As one who has been closely associated with the Hamlin Schools' athletic program for the past 14 years, both as a member of the press and a fan, I have never known a coach who has worked any harder at his job than David.

Nor have I ever known anyone who has put more determination, enthusiasm, or desire into the program as David and his staff have during the past two and a half years. His record is one that any coach could be proud of but at the same time it is one that is well earned.

I know that L. C. and the rest of the family are quite proud of these two. And if the truth were known, I

DURING BCD BANQUET—

Mother-Son Combination Named Top Citizens Here

A mother-son combination came up with the top honors at the Hamlin Board of Community Development Annual Banquet held here Friday as Mrs. L. C. Bonds and her son, David, were named Woman and Man of the Year.

The presentation was made by John Watts, chairman of the selection committee composed of representatives of all of the service clubs and organizations in Hamlin.

Mrs. Bonds, while active in many of the church and civic affairs of Hamlin and the executive secretary of the BCD, was cited for her award for being the driving force in securing a Child Day Care Center for Hamlin.

David was cited for, "having done much to strengthen and reinforce our pride in our community" through the accomplishments of his athletic teams at Hamlin High School.

Peggy Jane is the wife of L. C. Bonds and they have four sons and eight grandchildren. She is active in the Methodist Church where she is a member of the Administrative Board and teaches the Mary Martha Sunday School class. She is a member of Eastern Star and is presently serving as secretary of the local chapter. Peggy is also active in the Xi Gamma Pi chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority and has held many of the offices within the chapter.

Watts in making the presentation pointed out the many duties Peggy performs for the BCD as executive secretary and then said, "For this work alone, she deserves to receive this award tonight."

"But in the summer of 1972 she saw the need, and it is a very real need, for a Child Care Center here in Hamlin. Unlike most people who would just say, 'yes, we need a Day Care Center,' and do nothing more, she set to work to see that Hamlin would have a Day Care Center."

"On her own time she investigated how to go about setting up such a center, what type of facility would be necessary, what type of equipment would be put into it. And then she suggested, asked, begged, prodded, cried, anything that was necessary to get the project actually on the road."

"And in October of 1973 the first Carnival was held to raise money for the funding of the Center. With that initial $900.00 raised, she set to work as though we had all the money necessary to create the Center. Little did she know that her work was only beginning."

"She located the facility, made arrangements for its

BE ACTIVE IN COMMUNITY—

Dr. Kyker Urges Citizens Not to Become Cripples

Dr. Rex Paxton Kyker urged his audience not to become cripples, but to become active in the affairs of their community. Dr. Kyker, chairman of the Department of Communication at Abilene Christian College, spoke to the Annual Banquet of the Hamlin Board of Community Development here Friday evening.

One of the main highlights of the annual community affair, was the presentation of the Citizens of the Year award to Mrs. L. C. Bonds and her son David. Mrs. Bonds was cited for her efforts in getting the Hamlin Day Care Center in operation here. David was selected for his accomplishments with the Hamlin Athletic program during his nearly three years as Athletic Director. The presentation was made by John Watts, chairman of the selection committee.

(See other story in this edition on Citizens of the Year Awards.)

The new officers and directors were presented by retiring president, Bob Craig. He also recognized the outgoing officers and the directors whose three-year terms had expired.

New officers presented were Pat Willoughby, president; Mrs. Robert Fowler, first vice president; Joe Cowan, second vice president; Mrs. O. H. Weaver Jr., treasurer; and Mrs. L. C.

Bonds, executive secretary.

Willoughby, in accepting the leadership role of the BCD for the coming year, asked for the help and support of those attending the banquet during the coming year and said, "with it there is nothing that cannot be done."

The Hamlin High School Stage Band, under the direction of Tim Jones, opened the banquet with a selection of several numbers. The band is scheduled to tour Europe this summer.

Craig, as retiring president, gave a report on the organization's activities during the past year and cited three major accomplishments for the community. They were the opening of the Hamlin Child Day Care Center, the forming of an Industrial Foundation, and the training program that has been launched for an Industrial Team.

The Center, which opened last June with six children now has 34 enrolled and has a waiting list. The Center has seven employees and a payroll of about $2,750 per month. "This Day Care Center is something that the whole community can take great pride in because it is a community project," Craig said.

Dr. Kyker, who was introduced by Lynn Mink, gave examples of people down through the ages who have overcome serious handicaps to become great leaders. He said that there is so much available for us to do and in his closing comment said, "I will not be a cripple. God wants me to do something wonderful with my life — I will not disappoint Him."

Mink, music-education director of the First Baptist Church, served as master of ceremonies and introduced the out of town guests. The Rev. Jim Smith, pastor of the First United Methodist Church gave the invocation and David E. Giddings, minister of the Church of Christ, gave the benediction.

Decorations for the banquet were provided by local clubs and organizations with each group using the theme of their organization to decorate a table. Providing the decorations were the Woman's Literary Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, Xi Gamma Pi, Beta Theta, Hamlin Garden Club, Young Homemakers, Woman's Forum, Eastern Star, Future Homemakers, Future Farmers, Lions Club and Rotary Club.

First Aid Course Set

A First Aid Course sponsored by the Hamlin Fire Department will be started Thursday, Jan. 30. Classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Hamlin High School.

Anyone interested in the 40-hour course should call 576-3671. It is open to all men and women 18 years of age or older.

To Head Public Housing Here

O. G. "Keg" Harvey has been named director of the Hamlin Public Housing Authority, according to Gene Prewit, chairman of the Housing Board.

Harvey replaces Tommy Robertson who recently resigned from this position.

WHEN YOUR RATES GO UP WE'RE THE FIRST TO KNOW

Because our rates go up first. When the people who generate electricity for the rural electric cooperative pay more for their generating fuels, when they install costly anti-pollution devices, when they do anything that affects the price of power, the costs are passed along to the cooperative and its member-owners. In a time of instability in the oil and gas market, such increases seem all too frequent. But the rural electric cooperative, through good times and bad, for more than 30 years, has provided power at its lowest possible price. It's a promise we make for the future as well.

And What Have You

suspect that L. C. should get at least a small portion of the plaques because he does a lot of the leg work for both of them.

As one who only had one semester of economics in college and did not get much out of it, I just do not quite understand all that is being proposed by both the President and the Congress to re-direct our economy. Unfortunately, since we seem to get conflicting opinions from the nation's leading economists, I wonder if anyone knows what to do.

I do not suppose there will be much opposition to the idea of a tax cut since not many of us ever oppose such a move. But I still wonder how this is going to help very much. I do not know many people who will take their $200 or $300 and go out and buy a $6,000 car.

But the part that the average person seems to not be able to understand at all is the President's idea of a tax on oil. Now in the first place I do not think that any one has really sold the American people that we have an oil problem. People hear all kinds of talk about storage tanks being full and they see the price of gasoline either holding its own or even dropping a cent or two and they just do not believe we have a problem that is all that serious.

The public just does not understand the problem of balance of payments and other problems created by our importing so much oil. And they are not going to get with this matter of cutting back on the consumption of oil and gas until someone explains it better than it has been explained up to now.

From all I can read, it would appear that a tax on oil will just fuel the fires of inflation and offset any tax reduction being proposed. It would seem that in the end we will all be worse off than we were when this started. The cost of fertilizer will go up, as will the cost of trucking and other transportation, which in turn will continue to drive up the price of food.

It has been projected that the proposed $3.00 a barrel tax on oil would increase the price of gasoline about 10c a gallon. Now this is supposed to cause us to use less but over the past two years gasoline has gone up nearly 20c and I do not believe consumption has gone down very much. Most of us will continue to buy gas and find someplace else to make up the difference.

People's habits are hard to change and in many cases it takes a long time to change them to any extent. While many of us might like to own a car that got better gas mileage we still owe on the one we have. And most people who have driven big cars for any length of time are not going to buy a smaller car until they are forced to. This is proven by the fact that it is the smaller cars that Chrysler and Ford are currently discounting.

This tax idea might work, but I doubt it. I suspect that we will not solve our oil import problems until we either ration gasoline or just put a limit on the imports and let the resulting shortages change our habits.

Citizens of the Year

acquisition and started gathering up the equipment that is required by the State to obtain a license to care for 35 children. Before she was through, there were few people in town who could say that they had not been asked by her for a donation to the Day Care Center.

"When things were not moving fast enough for her she would hire work done out of her own pocket, not expecting to be reimbursed for those expenses. After hours of hard work, of sleepless nights, of great frustrations and great joys, on June 17, 1974, her dream came true when the Hamlin Child Day Care Center opened its doors for the first time.

"On that day back in June, we had as many women working as we had children being cared for, but in the seven short months since that date, our enrollment has risen to 34.

"And through her able leadership on the Board of Trustees, the Center is fast approaching the status of a financially stable, non-profit organization that will render a most valuable service to this community for years to come."

In making the Man of the Year presentation, Watts said, "One of the basic needs in building a progressive, forward-moving community is a strong sense of community pride and unity. Unless the total community is involved in civic betterment, no progress can be achieved. But total community involvement can only come about if everyone first has a sense of pride in our city and feels that by working together we can make Hamlin a better place in which to live. Our Man of the Year for 1974 has done much to strengthen and reinforce our pride in our community." After citing the many championships won by Hamlin since David became Head Coach and Athletic Director in 1972, Watts said, "His teams win not because winning is demanded of them at any cost, but rather they win because he has taught each individual player to be confident in himself and his abilities, to take pride in teamwork and in doing a job well.

"And what does the community derive from a successful, well-administered high school athletic program? It provides young citizens who have developed character traits that will serve them well throughout their lives, such as self-confidence and satisfaction in a job well done. It helps to bridge the so-called Generation Gap by providing a common meeting place for our students and our adults of all ages.

"And it goes a long way toward building that necessary ingredient of community pride."

A native of Hamlin, David is married to the former Gena Cox and they have two children, Doug and Joe. He is a graduate of McMurry College where he was named to the All-American Track Team and was named a Little All-American in football. He played professional football for the Kansas City Chiefs before coaching at Ballinger, McCombs and at Alice.

In his first head coaching job here at Hamlin his football teams have won two District Championships and shared a third and won one Bi-District title. The basketball team won District and Bi-District in 1973 and District in 1974. The track team has won the State Championship the past two years and the golf team won district last year.
